Influenced by the traditional game of limbo-- where players ask, "How low can you go?"-- the crypto alternative flips the script, asking, "How high can you increase?"

Unlike traditional slots with intricate paylines, Limbo includes a single, tidy interface. A gamer sets a target multiplier (e.g., 2x, 10x, and even 1000x), puts a bet utilizing cryptocurrency (like Bitcoin, Ethereum, or GBPT), and strikes the roll button. If the arbitrarily created game result is equivalent to or greater than the picked target, the gamer wins. <https://bitz.io/games/limbo-02> If it fails, the bet is lost.

Understanding the Math: Risk vs. Reward

The core appeal of Limbo depends on its transparent likelihood model. Unlike slots where Return to Player (RTP) portions can be obscured, Limbo usually operates with a repaired house edge-- usually around 1% (indicating an RTP of 99%).

To comprehend how the game works in practice, consider the relationship between the target multiplier, the win opportunity, and the potential payout.

Limbo Multiplier vs. Win Chance (Based on a 1% House Edge)

Target Multiplier	Theoretical Win Probability	Payout on a £ 10 Bet
1.01 x	98.01%	£ 10.10
2.00 x	49.50%	£ 20.00
5.00 x	19.80%	£ 50.00
10.00 x	9.90%	£ 100.00
50.00 x	1.98%	£ 500.00
100.00 x	0.99%	£ 1,000.00
1,000.00 x	0.099%	£ 10,000.00

As the table shows, targeting a low multiplier (like 1.01 x) provides the gamer a nearly 98% possibility of winning, but the earnings per win is minimal. Conversely, going for a 1,000 x multiplier deals life-altering returns on a little bet, however the odds of hitting it are less than 0.1%.
